DE				General and technical	Germany does not support this FDIS. Both, terminal and technique will cause safety hazards if applied without detailed security measures! This is related both to HV- as well as LV- level, too. If in some very special cases such applications may be indispensable, there should be given clear safety instructions and strict warning notices fitted at the "equipment" itself and in the close vicinity. These safety precautions shall not be substituted by a graphical symbol for diagrams and such graphical symbol shall not be adopted within 60617-DB without warning corroborations stating the risks of an improvident usage of the symbol.	No such symbol in the database; delete that project.
